A SMALL-PARTY PRINTABLE

Guest & Contact Tracker

The guest list is the only part of a party that can't be bought or improvised. One page for every name, the best way to reach them, and what they answered — so the food, the chairs and the parking math later is arithmetic instead of detective work.

How to use it

1. Start with every name you'd even consider inviting. Lists shrink kindly before invites go out; they can't grow after.
2. Fill in a phone or an email where you know it. The blanks reveal themselves gently now, and un-gently the day before.
3. The RSVP column is yours to write in: y (yes), m (maybe), n (no). A maybe kept warm often warms up to yes.
4. Use the People column for heads, not names — it's what food math runs on when someone brings a plus-one.
5. When an RSVP arrives, write it that same day. One tidy page beats a tidy memory, every time.

What's inside

- Page 2 — the tracker grid: names, contact, RSVPs, headcounts, notes.
- Page 3 — getting everyone there: gentle nudges, dietary summary, rides and parking.

> A kind note: an unanswered invite isn't a rejection — it's a busy human. This page keeps track of facts so your feelings can stay out of the arithmetic.

Print at 100% (“Actual size”), US Letter, portrait. Prints nicely in black & white. Personal use: print as many copies as you like.

Guest & Contact Tracker

RSVP column: write y, m, or n. People column: heads, not names.

Name	Phone or email	RSVP	People	Notes (dietary, rides, small kids)

Count for food math

Yeses add up to: _____ people · add 10% for luck and plus-ones → plan for _____

Getting Everyone There

The logistics that quietly decide whether people actually arrive.

Haven't heard back — gentle nudges

- _____
- _____
- _____

A Tuesday text beats a Friday phone call, and "just checking the count!" beats everything.

Dietary & allergies at a glance

Everyday allergies (the serious ones, kindly noted): _____

Vegetarian or vegan: _____ Gluten-free: _____

Small or picky eaters: _____ Drinks, include and avoid: _____

Safest menu move this party: _____

Rides, parking & the neighbor's driveway

- Who might need a lift? _____
- Who lives near each other (carpool pairs)? _____
- Parking plan: _____ Transit plan: _____
- The kind neighbor with the extra driveway: _____

Small-party wisdom: you are choosing people for a room, not filling a room with people. Every name that makes you smile on the way down this list belongs at the table.
